Legislative intent

It is the intent of the legislature through the provisions of the TN Responsible Alcohol Vendor Act:

1. To eliminate the sale of beer for off-the-premises consumption to, and consumption of beer by, underage persons;
2. To reduce intoxication and to reduce accidents, injuries, and deaths in the state that are related to intoxication;
3. To encourage vendors to be prudent in their selling practices of beer, and to restrict or reduce the sanctions that may be imposed in administrative proceedings by local beer boards against those vendors who voluntarily comply with responsible practices in accordance with this part; and
4. To uniformly apply all provisions in this part statewide, including training, certification and the imposition of penalties or other sanctions for violations of this part, and that no variations from the provisions on training, certification or penalties are permissible.

Loss of certification for sale to minor

If a beer board determines that a sale to a minor occurred by an off-premise beer permit holder, then the certification of the clerk making the sale shall be invalid and the clerk may not reapply for a new certificate for a period of one (1) year from the date of the beer board's determination. Beer boards shall report the names of such clerks to the commission within fifteen (15) days of finding that a sale to a minor occurred. The commission shall notify the responsible vendor of their certified clerks who have lost their certification within fifteen (15) days of notification by the beer board.
In order to help easily identify clerks, the law requires that all employees must wear a name badge with their first and last name on it.

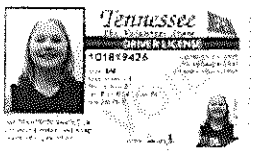
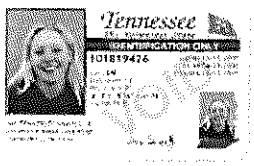
TN Responsible Alcohol Vendor Training (Tennessee) - Minors & Determining Legal Age - Test Your Knowledge: Acceptable ID 57 / 115

Which of the following are valid and acceptable ID? Click on the image to select your answer.



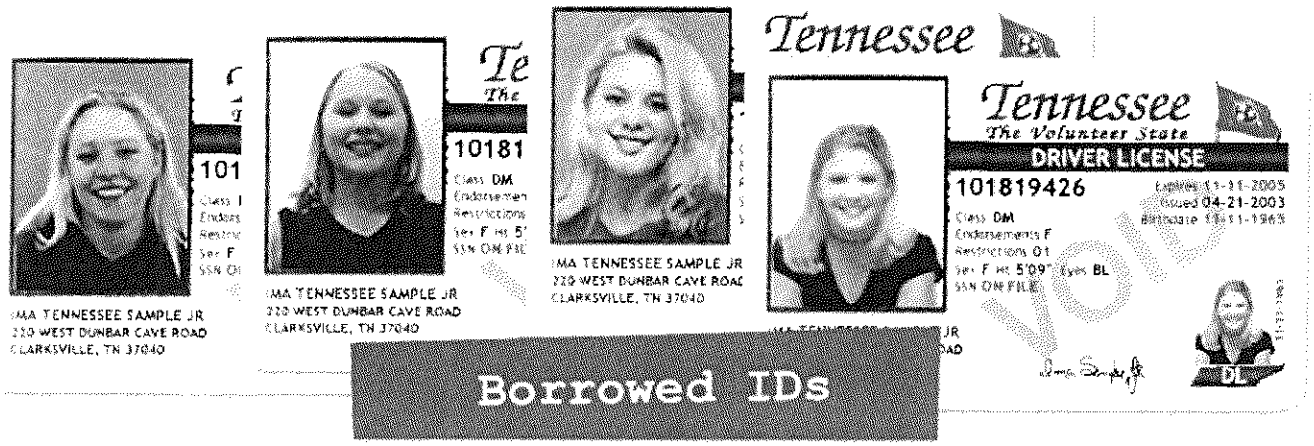
State Issued Driver License

Valid Passport



State Issued Handover ID

Military ID

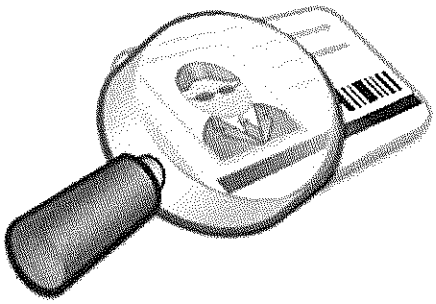


A potential underage purchaser can usually count on the fact that any borrowed ID will not be closely inspected by the alcohol server.

How can you detect a fake or altered ID?

Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.



Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID.
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!

2. To reduce intoxication and to reduce accidents, injuries, and deaths in the state that are related to intoxication;

Loss of certification for sale to minor

If a beer board determines that a sale to a minor occurred by an off-premise beer permit holder, then the certification of the clerk making the sale shall be invalid and the clerk may not reapply for a new certificate for a period of one (1) year from the date of the beer board's determination. Beer boards shall report the names of such clerks to the commission within fifteen (15) days of finding that a sale to a minor occurred. The commission shall notify the responsible vendor of their certified clerks who have lost their certification within fifteen (15) days of notification by the beer board.
In order to help easily identify clerks, the law requires that all employees must wear a name badge with their first and last name on it.

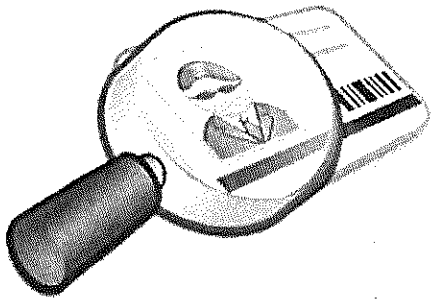
A potential underage purchaser can usually count on the fact that any borrowed ID will not be closely inspected by the alcohol server.

How can you detect a fake or altered ID?



Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.

Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification.

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!

Loss of certification for sale to minor

If a beer board determines that a sale to a minor occurred by an off-premise beer permit holder, then the certification of the clerk making the sale shall be invalid and the clerk may not reapply for a new certificate for a period of one (1) year from the date of the beer board's determination. Beer boards shall report the names of such clerks to the commission within fifteen (15) days of finding that a sale to a minor occurred. The commission shall notify the responsible vendor of their certified clerks who have lost their certification within fifteen (15) days of notification by the beer board.

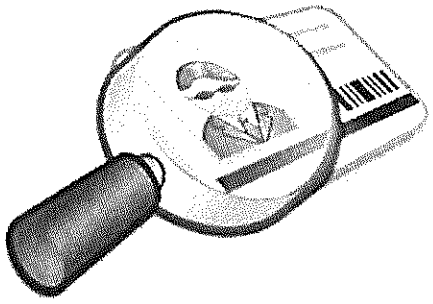
A potential underage purchaser can usually count on the fact that any borrowed ID will not be closely inspected by the alcohol server.

How can you detect a fake or altered ID?



Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.

Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID.
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification.

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!

Loss of certification for sale to minor

If a beer board determines that a sale to a minor occurred by an off-premise beer permit holder, then the certification of the clerk making the sale shall be invalid and the clerk may not reapply for a new certificate for a period of one (1) year from the date of the beer board's determination. A potential underage purchaser can usually count on the fact that any borrowed ID will not be closely inspected by the alcohol server.

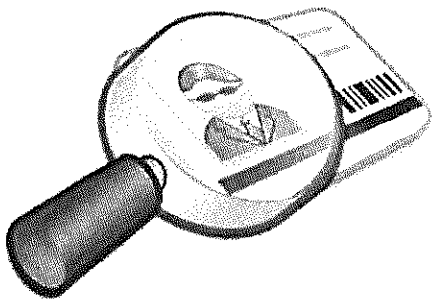
How can you detect a fake or altered ID?

Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.



Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification.

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!

Loss of certification for sale to minor

Beer boards shall report the names of such clerks to the commission within fifteen (15) days of finding that a sale to a minor occurred. The commission shall notify the responsible vendor of their certified clerks who have lost their certification within fifteen (15) days of notification by the beer board.

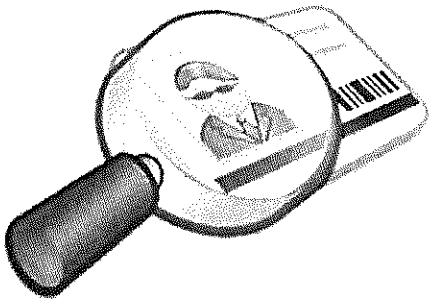
How can you detect a fake or altered ID?

Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.



Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID.
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification.

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!

Loss of certification for sale to minor

If a beer board determines that a sale to a minor occurred by an off-premise beer permit holder, then the certification of the clerk making the sale shall be invalid and the clerk may not reapply for a new certificate for a period of one (1) year from the date of the beer board's determination. Beer boards shall report the names of such clerks to the commission within fifteen (15) days of finding that a sale to a minor occurred. The commission shall notify the responsible vendor of their certified clerks who have lost their certification within fifteen (15) days of notification by the beer board.

In order to help easily identify clerks, the law requires that all employees must wear a name badge with their first and last name on it.

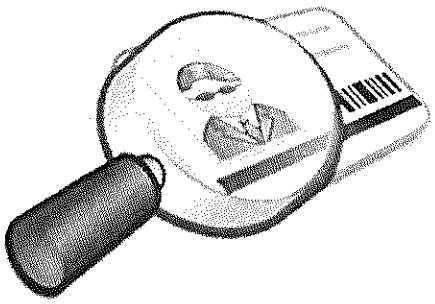
A potential underage purchaser can usually count on the fact that any borrowed ID will not be closely inspected by the alcohol server.

How can you detect a fake or altered ID?

Remember:

- ALWAYS have the customer remove the I.D. from the wallet.



Feel for:

- Pin holes on the surface and look for color variations on the date of birth.

Examine:

- The photo and physical description. They should match the person handing you the ID.
- The expiration date. You CANNOT accept an expired ID.
- The birth date. Are they old enough?
- Whether-or-not the ID is a duplicate.
- The state logo. If it's partially missing or blurred, the ID might be fake.
- The hologram. Is it a genuine hologram or a basic hologram added to a fake ID?
- The card's reverse side lettering. Some ID makers neglect the back side of the ID. Look for blurred lettering or differences from the front of the ID.
- Whether it is an out-of-state license. Use an ID Checking Guide when you're looking at an unfamiliar license.

Ask:

- About basic information on the card, such as the birth date, middle initial, zip code, age, etc.
- For a second form of ID. People with fake IDs rarely carry back-up identification.

Return:

- If you are satisfied that the proof of age is valid, you may sell.
- If you are not convinced, return the ID to the customer and refuse the sale!
